

How to use Discovery Education

First, you need to get to Clever, through Digital Resources on the HUB.

Then, you need to find Library References.

Once you are in Library References, find Discovery Education.

The icon looks like this.

Discovery Education has Single-Sign-On, so it should automatically log you in. We don't have a separate login for it, so if it doesn't let you in right away, close out your internet (all tabs) then try again.

When you open up Discovery Education, it looks like this:

The information under MLA is what you need to write down (or type in) to give credit to your source.

After you have written your citation information, it's time to start answering the questions you came up with. The answers to those questions are the "Notefacts" (as IIM calls them). You can write these on your own paper, or type them out.

The "Notefacts" do not need to be submitted. Nothing needs to be submitted! This is not for a grade.

The purpose of this research is just to give you an opportunity to practice and build good research habits.
